

Kuali Curriculum Management supports efficient existing curriculum processes and approvals while connecting with campus systems using tight integrations to ensure accurate, up-to-date information everywhere it is needed without duplicate data entry.

Curriculum First

Curriculum is the heart of higher ed. Institutions work hard to make it student-centered, success-oriented, and for the betterment of the community at large. With Kuali Curriculum Management, the process is more efficient, freeing up time to focus on improving curriculum and business processes to improve student experience and success. Additionally, a curriculum first approach allows you to dynamically build your catalog in just a few simple steps.

Efficiently Manage Processes and Approvals

Workflows and approval processes can be tailored to any organizational unit to ensure all stakeholders are included in the most efficient and effective way. Automatically generate agendas for curriculum committee meetings and asynchronously move curriculum proposals through workflows to approval freeing up time to use toward more mission-critical tasks.

Ignite Community on Your Campus

Bring all stakeholders together in the intuitive, all-in-one platform to work together from start to finish following your institution's processes to continually improve curriculum, student experience and success, and the accreditation review process. Utilize features like agendas, commenting, and notifications to support collaboration throughout the process.

Consistent, Accurate, and Actionable Data Across Systems

Keep data consistent across campus and reduce errors that result from duplicate, manual data entry through modules that consistently pull and share data between all connected systems. Glean insights through robust reports and connected data combined with data from campus systems to empower data-backed decision making.

What Our Partner Institutions Are Saying

University of Victoria

“By using Kuali,” said James Wigginton, Curriculum and Calendar Manager at the University of Victoria, “we were able to configure a workflow that is the same for everyone but has enough flexibility to meet everyone’s needs. It made getting everybody on board that much easier.”

“The beauty of Kuali is that we’re always looking at the right proposal,” said Wigginton. “There’s no chance that somebody is looking at an outdated source.”

“We now have a database with all of our curriculum records, which is something that our institution has never had before. That’s a wonderful asset.” Laurie Barnas, Associate Registrar, University of Victoria

Southern New Hampshire University

“Not having to worry about all of the manual efforts lets me actually focus on [important] projects which are moving our university forward quite a bit,” said Mike O’Connor, Director of System Analytics in the Office of the University Registrar at SNHU.

“I don’t think the curriculum office could have kept up this year if we didn’t have Kuali,” said O’Connor.

“This university catalog project will lead to business process improvement across the entire university,” said O’Connor. “We wouldn’t have the resources to do this kind of project, at least on the curriculum side, if we were managing everything manually and doing all the communication that Kuali does.”

Murray State University

Traditionally, committees met in person to discuss curriculum changes. With forced remote work due to social distancing, these committees had initially planned to meet via video conference; however, with Kuali, they don’t need to meet at all. Instead, committee members used Kuali Curriculum Management’s reporting, agenda, and commenting tools to complete their work and stay on track asynchronously with the same levels of success. “I never felt the lack of face-to-face meetings prevented us from moving forward with anything,” said Ashley Rogers, Assistant Registrar, Curriculum Management, Murray State University.
